LOT No. 2.

WALL PAPER LOWER THAN EVER

Lot No. 1, 2974 rolls, went with a rush, so lot No. 2, of 1033 rolls, was secured by a lucky strike. Gilt, plain and embossed, and Linens, single, double and quadruple thickness go at 1-3 REGULAR RATES. The borders are simply elegant; 9 and 18-inch borders go at REDUCED RATES.

THE BIG DRUG STORE Is Headquarters on Wall Paper.

LARKIN'S long experience in handling every known quality of wall paper and his extensive acquaintance with manufacturers and dealers enables him to buy at rates that cannot be duplicated. In fact, Larkin does not pay market rates for paper. No attention is given to the market; everything is bought for from 1/4 to 1/2 regular. "Goods well bought are half sold." Since Lake County was settled no such sales of paper have been made as by the BIG DRUG STORE in the last 17 days. Antioch is a great trading center and will become larger. Larkin sees this fact in all its bearings and is getting ready for it. This the Stock of Wall Paper is now being doubled.

Watch the dry loads this week.
The stock of Patent Medicines is now being doubled and Every Thing Else.

Larkin hereby agrees to keep on hand, beginning April 20th, the largest stock of any Drug Store in Lake County, and the largest and most complete between Chicago and Waukegan. Why still go to Chicago for drugs when you can do as well or better in Antioch. Larkin stopped one man from going to Chicago yesterday. He sold the bill for less than the customer could get it at the "Fair". Larkin thinks it to be for the interest of the people to build up a great drug store at home. The Main Point of all is, that you can get what you call for at the

BIG STORE

Come and see the large new cases filled with new goods. The rule is:—Sell everything. Pay no attention to market prices. Give you what you call for. One hundred new kinds of goods being received. Come to Antioch. Big Drug Store is in the center of the town. Prices right.

ANNUAL MEETING F. L. Y. C.

At Chicago, Last Evening—Oliver Sollitt Re-Elected Commodore.

Thirty-One Members Discuss the Affairs of the Club and an Elaborate Dinner.

In his usual happy manner, Commodore Oliver Sollitt called the annual meeting of the Fox Lake Yacht Club to order, at the Chicago Athletic Club House, last evening. Previously, for about two hours, an elaborate seven-course menu, as follows:

Radishes, Queen Olives,
Consomme aux Petites,
Sautéed Almonds,
Braised White Fish, Maitre d'Hotel,
Cucumbers, Pommes Sarah,
Roast Spring Lamb, Kidney,
Green Peas, Herminette Potatoes,
Florida Sherbert,
Philadelphia Capon with Truffles,
Hearts of Lettuce, Mayonnaise,
Charlotte Russe,
Bouquet of Champagne.

was discussed, and property proposed of. A mandolin and harp orchestra was stationed in the banquet hall, and between courses (with closed doors) the stentorian bass of Mr. Elwell, the tenor of "Ed," Virman, the soprano of Sumner Sollitt, and the rich contralto of "Frank" Morris, ably supported by "Chuck" Boyden, "Vic" Born, "Frank" Hansell, and the entire strength of the "Company," rendered the following Club "airs," prescribed by the Commodore, in a manner that would do credit to professionals:

Every Sunday down to her home we go
All the boys and all the girls they love her so,
Always jolly, heart that is true I know;
She is the Sunshine of Paradise Alley.

Selling, sailing, over the bounding main,
There's many a stormy wind shall blow
Ere Jack comes home again.
Selling, sailing, over the bounding main,
There's many a stormy wind shall blow
Ere Jack comes home again.

Merrily we roll along, roll along, roll along,
Merrily we roll along, over the deep blue sea.

OLIVER SOLLITT,
Commodore Fox Lake Yacht Club.
(RE-ELECTED)

The business session was taken up with annual reports, election of officers and new members, fixing dates of regattas and points of starting, etc., and in substance were as follows:

Commodore Sollitt reported the Club in first-class condition; that several new yachts would be placed on Fox Lake this season; that for the first time in the existence of the Club, death had entered its ranks, Col. Lippincott and Charles Kessell having died during the past year.

Secretary Weber made a report on the regattas sailed last year, and Treasurer Paterson accounted for the funds of the Club. Both reports were approved.

The following gentlemen were proposed and accepted as members of the Club:

Charles D. Peacock, Jr.,
Albert H. Weber,
F. M. Tobin.
EDWARD VARIAN,
Donald M. Kingsbury, Boston.
L. L. Woodbury, Boston.
J. L. Walker, Boston.

The election of officers and regatta committee resulted as follows:

Commodore—Oliver Sollitt (re-elected).
Vice-Commodore—Clark Bennett.
Secretary—B. B. Fell.
Captain—Rev. Jennin Lloyd Jones (re-elected).
Treasurer—D. J. Paterson (re-elected).

Regatta Committee—Commodore Sollitt, Vice-Commodore Bennett, C. M. Boyden, C. D. Peacock, Jr., H. F. Weber, Victor Born, George A. Griffin, J. J. Putnam.

Several nominees "attempted" to decline the honor of an office, but were promptly squelched by the following refrain, sung as only the F. L. Y. C. boys can sing it:

For he's a jolly good fellow,
He's a jolly good fellow,
For he's a jolly good fellow,
Which nobody will deny.
Then Hip, Hip, Hurray,
Then Hip, Hip, Hurray,
For he's a jolly good fellow,
He's a jolly good fellow,
For he's a jolly good fellow,
Which nobody will deny.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the officers and members of committees for last season.

The dates and points of starting the regattas of 1896 were fixed as follows:

July 10—From East Shore.
July 11—From West Shore.
July 12—From North Shore.
July 13—From East Shore.
August 5—From West Shore.
August 12—From North Shore.

On the map of courses as made by the Vice-Commodore last season was adopted for the regatta of 1896.

An invitation was received and accepted from the Inter-Lake Yacht Club to meet with them at their annual meet at Put-in-Bay, on Aug. 3, 4 and 5.

J. B. Minshall Pursues and Assassinated W. B. O. Sands, Then Shoots His Wife, Three Children and Himself—Reason for Crimes—St. Louis Murder.

President William B. O. Sands of the village of Pentwater, Mich., was assassinated last Thursday night. He was pursued by a man with a Winchester rifle, and was shot at five times, three bullets striking him. The assassin escaped.

Friday morning S. W. Fincher reported that he had lent his Winchester rifle to S. B. Minshall, a lawyer and real estate and insurance agent. One of the shells found near the place where Sands was shot was identified as belonging to Fincher's rifle.

Officers went at once to the Minshall residence. The doors were locked and no sign of life was apparent within. A posse broke in the door. On the floor in the parlor lay the body of Mrs. Minshall with a bullet hole in her head. Beside her lay the body of Minshall, his head pillowed on her arm and a bullet in the right temple, fired so close that the powder had burned the flesh. An empty five-chambered revolver was

SPAIN'S ASSEMBLED FLEET AWAITING ORDERS.

Viscaya. Alfonso XIII. Reina Mercedes. Pelayo. Almirante Oquendo. Infanta Maria Theresa.

In his home. At the foot of the stairs was the body of the 16-year-old daughter, Ruby Minshall. Apparently she heard the shot that killed her mother and came down stairs in her night robe. She had been shot through the brain. The flash set fire to the girl's night clothes and burned her hand and neck before the blood quenched the flames.

In bed upstairs covered with blood were the bodies of the two sons, George, aged 3 years, and Frank, 2 years old. They had been shot while they slept.

Mr. Sands, who was president of the Sands & Maxwell Lumber company, left his office at 9 o'clock and walked almost to the door of his residence.

Suddenly he was confronted by a man with a rifle. Before he could say a word or make any effort to save himself the man fired at him at short range.

The rifle ball shattered Mr. Sands' shoulder. He turned and ran toward the nearest house. Again the man fired, the bullet again striking Mr. Sands' shoulder and glanced downward, shattering the hip bone. The lumberman ran through a gate into the yard of a neighbor named Jensen, whose house he tried to enter, but found the door locked. He then ran to a fence, which he was unable to climb. His assailant continued to pursue him, firing rapidly.

Mr. Sands, bleeding profusely from several severed arteries, groped about in the darkness until he found a gate leading to the side door of a dwelling. Against this door he threw all his weight, and broke the latch. His figure was relieved against the light within, and the assassin fired again. Mr. Sands fell on the threshold. The man with the rifle then disappeared.

The neighbors aroused, carried the wounded man to his own home, physicians were called and the alarm given. It was found necessary to amputate the arm just below the shoulder in the hope that Mr. Sands' life might be saved, but the shock of the operation after so great loss of blood caused a collapse from which the patient could not rally.

Minshall's pockets were full of cartridges and a letter was found addressed to "A. Williams, Hookery building, Chicago." In it Minshall declares his purpose to kill himself because of his pressing financial difficulties, and hints at his intention to kill Mr. Sands, who, he declares, had taken advantage of him. He asks that his family be provided for if they survive him, although he says it may be better for them that they all die before being reduced to beggary.

He has felt, he says, that the resolution which led pauper fathers to kill their pauper children was Spartan-like and that no one not so situated could understand the impulse. In another letter he says that Sands had promised him all the business of the lumber firm, but had lately demanded a third of it as a commission and had taken away a half of the insurance policies from which Minshall derived his living.

The union stock yards at Des Moines, Iowa, will close this week. They were opened last December.

NO BETTER.

Business, Says, Been Slightly Better the Past Week.

Railroad & Co's Weekly Review of Trade.

The volume of business has not on the whole increased nor have prices advanced since April 1, when the range for all commodities was the lowest ever known in this country. Breadstuffs and iron products have risen slightly, but some other articles have declined, and the root of the matter is that demand for consumption is still below expectations. The weather has not favored active distribution of spring goods, and uncertainty as to continued employment affects the purchases by hands in a large number of establishments.

The injury done to winter wheat by storms and frosts at the west would appear from reports of state officers to have been considerable. But the reports are not more gloomy than a year ago, and the quantity of wheat which has come from farms since Aug. 1 has been 163,781,694 bushels, against 129,076,460 at the same date last year.

Western receipts for the week are about 60 per cent larger than last year, and for two weeks about 50 per cent, while Atlantic exports, flour included, have been for the week only 909,055 bushels, against 1,759,006 last year, a decrease of nearly half. These conditions tend to check the advance, which

Is it not about time that the consignee paid the freight charges on milk, the same as on all other products marketed by the farmer.

THE WAUKEGAN REVENUE comes out with a new Spring dress and is much improved thereby. We are glad to note this evidence of increasing prosperity, and hope it may continue.

How much longer will the shipper submit to the injustice of being forced to furnish cans to every retail dealer in milk, great and small, in the city of Chicago, while he deals out the milk in pails and quarts to his customers, and then use the can as a slop bucket for collection of garbage. If the shipper submits to this abuse inimical to the health of the community, the board of health should look into the matter.

NEXT Tuesday the people of this village will vote for a President of the Board of Trustees, one Village Clerk, one Village Treasurer and three trustees. There is but one ticket in the field and that is made up of careful and conservative business men, who will carry out the wishes of the people so far as it shall be in their power to do. The only question before the people is that of license or no license and upon that question every voter should express himself according to his own best judgment. If you are satisfied that the licensed saloon is socially and morally wrong, the revenue to be derived therefrom should not influence your judgment. If on the other hand, you believe that by license the liquor question can best be controlled, express yourself by the ballot, and whatever way the result may be determined THE NEWS will accept it as the wishes of the people where majorities rule.

How much is milk worth upon the market is a question agitating the minds of many shippers at the present time. Milk, like every other product of the farm, is worth what it will bring, no more, no less; its price being controlled by supply and demand, time, seasons and conditions must and will control the output or supply and consequently the price, even though the consumption of milk is unchanged. When butter is cheap there is always an overplus of milk upon the market, which must necessarily force the price down and the reverse or advance in price of butter will naturally advance the price of milk. Ordinarily it is safe to say that the Elgin butter market controls the price of milk, which in turn is controlled by the laws of supply and demand. It would be unwise for the shipper to establish a price for the reasons as above given, although he should have a voice in fixing the price for a given period, under the then existing conditions, subject to the laws of supply and demand, and through organization and a more perfect knowledge of the supply and probable demand, he will be enabled to do so. In no event should the price fixed upon by the shipper and dealer extend beyond a period of ninety days.

THE SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

The Nomination of Senator and Representatives Made by Acclamation.

The Senatorial Convention held on Wednesday, April 8 at Marengo was a harmonious body. It was called to order by F. K. Granger, chairman of the Senatorial committee. There were full delegations present from each county, and there being no contesting delegations the convention was organized with R. W. Wright as chairman and C. A. Lemmers as Secretary.

On motion the roll was called for the nomination of candidates for senator, and W. A. Cristy, of McHenry, presented the name of the Hon. Flavel K. Granger, and Charles Whitney, of Lake, moved that Mr. Granger be nominated by acclamation, and it was carried unanimously.

On a further roll call of the counties, A. C. Fassett, of Boone, presented the name of D. A. Fuller, and Chas. Whitney, of Lake, presented the name of George R. Lyon, for representatives, and on motion of W. A. Cristy, of McHenry, the nominations were made by acclamation without a dissenting vote. The following resolution, presented by Chas. Whitney, of Lake, was read and adopted:

Resolved, That the chairman and secretary of the convention, in certifying to the representatives to the secretary of state, also state that it is desired that the tickets to be used on election day be printed one and one-half votes for each of the candidates nominated here today for members of the general assembly.

A. C. Fassett, of Boone moved that the clerk call the roll and that the delegation from each county respond with the names of three persons to act as members of the senatorial committee for the ensuing year. Motion carried.

The roll being called, the delegations announced the following named as their choice for senatorial committee:

Boone—W. C. DeWolf, A. C. Fassett and F. J. Hall, of Belvidere.

Lake—Chas. Phillips, of Waukegan; John E. Ballard, of Libertyville; Thos. Strang, of Wadsworth.

McHenry—Jas. B. Perry, of McHenry; D. T. Smiley, of Woodstock; Geo. A. Bennett, Marengo.

A. W. Young, of Harvard, presented the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the senatorial committee be instructed and empowered to fill any vacancy that may occur upon the ticket now nominated because of death, resignation or other cause.

Short addresses were made by Messrs. Granger, Lyon and Fuller, the nominees, and by General Hawley, of Chicago, who appeared in behalf of the committee.

W. E. Mason, for United States senator, and, after the passage of a vote of thanks to R. M. Patrick for the use of his open house, on motion the convention adjourned.

Literary Notes.

Spalding's Lawn Tennis Guide for 1890 is out to-day. The book is more complete than ever, contains the new official playing rules complete, pictures of all the leading players, including such men as Hovey, Larned, Chace, Pim, Hobart, Paret, Mahoney and others. It contains the official ranking for 1890 and also a complete list of prize winners for last year. A valuable article on hints to beginners is also to be found in the book, as well as a report of all the leading tournaments of last season. It will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to any address in the United States or Canada by the American Sports Publishing Co., 241 Broadway, New York.

The May number of The Delinquent is called the Commencement Number. Its forecast of Summer Styles in dress and millinery is complete, including, beside the usual monthly display, a number of Commencement gowns and a chapter on the latest ideas in attire for bicycling. The varied methods of Dressing for their new in vogue are illustrated and described, and a New York dentist discusses the proper Care of the Teeth. Not less practical and useful to women are the first of a series of papers on Interior Decoration, by Mrs. Genevieve Wigfall, A. B. Longstreet's article on Recent Culinary Inventions, one on Domestic Sanitation, and the usual review of the Markets and talk about Cookery, the Spring dainties receiving due attention. Among the general reading a very entertaining article is contributed by Mary Cadwalader Jones, Mildred Conway tells about a novel Poster Party, and Carolyn Halsted describes the origin, organization and objects of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Witherspoon's Tea-Table Chat, notices of New Books and illustrated descriptions of the latest designs in Embroidery, Knitting, Tatting, Lace Making, etc., complete a magnificent number.

Happy Easterlike brings to all—rich and poor alike—its message of hope and cheer, and even the most matter-of-fact delight to honor the joyous season with all things bright and beautiful. Before it comes we love to think of it, to plan for it—each in his individual way—and that everything should assume an Easter dress and brightness is but a natural result of the all-pervading spirit of the festival. Even the books proclaim the near advent of the auspicious time. Demorest's Magazine comes to us in Easter dress, and with Easter pictures and poems, and general "springy" character, makes one immediately feel in accord with the season. Every number of Demorest's contains a Pattern Order which entitles the holder to reliable and stylish patterns at a merely nominal cost. The patterns that can be obtained during a year on the Orders given would, if purchased in the regular way, cost at least from $50 to $75. Everyone who will take the trouble to cut out this notice and forward it, with ten cents, to the address below, will receive a sample copy of Demorest's Magazine, containing a Pattern Order which entitles the holder to any pattern illustrated in any number of the Magazine published during the last twelve months, at the uniform price of four cents each; and frequently over thirty patterns are illustrated in one number, thus affording an almost unlimited variety to select from. Demorest's is published for $2 a year by the Demorest Publishing Company, 110 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Teachers' Examination.

Milk Shippers' Protective Association.

S. M. GALLOWAY,
Secretary and General Manager.
OFFICES:
733-34 STOCK EXCHANGE BUILDING,
108-110 LA SALLE STREET,
CHICAGO, ILL.

To Whom It May Concern!

The Executive Committee of the Milk Shippers' Protective Association on Friday, April 8, 1890, instructed the Secretary to send a copy of all notices, calls, etc., to THE ANTIOCH NEWS, and to notify the public through the columns of THE NEWS that all such notices, calls, etc., appearing in THE NEWS over the Secretary's signature, or bearing his O. K., are to be considered as official.

Dated, Chicago, April 6, 1890.
S. M. GALLOWAY, Secretary,
733-34 Stock Exchange Building,
108-110 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

The outcome of the conference between our executive committee and the Retail Dealers' Association must be hugely satisfactory to every member of our association. The spirit in which we are met by the dealers can readily be seen from the following motion made by Mr. Hill, president of the Dealers' Association, and seconded by Mr. French, the secretary of that association:

Moved and seconded, That in all instances, when members of the Dealers' Association change shippers, that preference be given to members of the Milk Shippers' Protective Association. The above motion was carried; every dealer voting for it. To enlighten our members and shippers in general as to just what the dealers are willing to do to correct the existing evils, I incorporate a resolution, passed by the joint committee. Be it Resolved, That in all instances where dealers have not a sufficient standing, or integrity and prompt pay, among the farmers, to get credit for milk shipped without a bond; that such bond be required, and in case of refusal, such dealer be black-listed by both associations.

Added to the above came another joint action of the two committees exactly in point, and that was, that all milk be sold under written contract. Such contract is now being drawn, and members can have them on request. Ask your neighbors to join the Association, thereby insuring our success, and it will also enable us to supply reliable dealers with good milk when wanted.

S. M. GALLOWAY, Sec'y,
733 Stock Exchange Building, Chicago.

The Habits of Children.

Should be closely watched and regulated by mothers. Carelessness in childhood often leads to serious troubles in after life. The digestive organs and bowels should be kept in the best possible condition to insure good health, not only for the present, but for years to come. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a harmless but potent remedy, corrects all such evils in children. Twenty doses (for children) 10c, at W. H. Emmons' Antioch.

A Prominent Lawyer.

Of Greenville, Ill., Mr. C. E. Cook, writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion, sick headache, sour stomach, constipation, etc., for several years. I sought long and tried many remedies, but was disappointed until I tried your Syrup Pepsin. I can cheerfully recommend it to any suffering from above complaints." W. H. Emmons, Antioch.

Editor of the Graphic.

Of Campbellsburg, Ind., writes: "I will carry your ad. at price named. Our druggist don't handle Syrup Pepsin and I want some of it myself. I have taken two bottles and it did my stomach more good than medicinal clayer took, and I want more of it. I have a case of dyspepsia." W. H. Emmons, Antioch.

A True Saying.

It has been said that habitual constipation is the cause of fully one-half the diseases that flesh is heir to. Keep your bowels regulated by Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and your system will be in proper condition to keep off diseases of all kinds. Get a sample bottle (10 doses 10 cents) of W. H. Since the changes in his building S. H. Bradbury has about the lightest printery in town, the building being admirably fitted for its uses. Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)
Will people never learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule the exceptions are terribly frequent and thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little inconsiderate exposure and seemingly trifling symptoms. Beyond this there are to-day countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of the occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected. When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effective. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by W. H. Emmons, Antioch, and W. H. Strang & Co., Lake Villa.

For the Ladies.

BY MRS. O. J. WEIDNER.

THE News takes great pleasure in adding this department, under the control of a capable lady, well-known to many of our readers, especially those of Chicago and Fox Lake. Items of interest to the household, nursery or kitchen, will be given careful consideration. It is addressed to Mrs. O. J. WEIDNER, 903 Washington Street, Hoboken, New Jersey.

"HOMELY" RECIPE.—How very seldom now-a-days we taste a real old-fashioned Indian pudding. Here is the recipe that has been used in a New England family for fifty years. The success of this pudding lies in the cooking. It is delicious; try it. It must be baked in a very moderate oven, and cooked five hours. It can be eaten warm or cold. Two quarts sweet milk, one cup molasses, one cup yellow Indian meal, one cup sifted flour. Butter an earthen pudding dish, and put in the dish the meal, teaspoonful salt, molasses and sugar, bring one quart of milk to a boil, pour over the meal, and stir until smooth; cover the dish and put in the oven; when it has cooked one hour put half a pint of the cold milk over the pudding (don't stir or disturb the pudding in any way) repeat every hour until the extra quart of milk is used; the last two hours that the pudding is in the oven take the cover off that it may brown.

BAKED BEANS.—Here is the recipe for the baked beans that accompanied the Indian pudding every Saturday night at the supper table. One quart white beans, soaked over night; in the morning pour-boil them; then put in an earthen pot with narrow mouth; mix one teaspoonful of dry mustard with one tablespoonful molasses, and stir through the beans; then peel a small onion and put in center of beans; score into squares half pound of salt pork, and place over the beans; fill the pot with boiling water, cover and put in the oven; as the water cooks away add more until the last hour they are in the oven; then take off the covers that they may brown; put in the oven with the pudding and cook the same length of time.

CREAM CABBAGE.—Half a head of cabbage, one cup sweet milk, piece of butter size of an egg, one tablespoonful vinegar, half teaspoonful sugar, yolks of two eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Cut the cabbage fine, put in a granite sauce pan, add the milk and butter, cook till tender; beat the vinegar, sugar and eggs together thoroughly, pour over the cabbage, stirring quickly and constantly to prevent curdling; take from the fire as soon as mixed.

STEAK PUDDING.—One pound of round steak cut into small bits, half pound suet, cut small; mix the two thoroughly; season highly with salt and pepper; make a paste for biscuits with one quart of flour, three teaspoonfuls baking powder and milk sufficient to make a soft dough; roll about half an inch thick; put the meat and suet in the center, and bring the edges together over it, squeezing them firmly; place in a well floured pudding cloth (allow room for swelling) put in kettle of boiling water and boil steadily an hour and a half or two hours; as the water boils away add more boiling water—the water must be boiling or the pudding will be heavy.

OUT OF THE SEA.

BY CLARA AUGUSTA.

Ralph had invited a couple of young gentlemen with their sisters up from the city, and Miss Ireton came over to the Rock with a gay party of her own friends. Boating, picnicking, hunting, fishing and strolling in the woods filled up the days, and in the evening they had dancing and music and conversation. Miss Ireton professed a great attachment for Agnes, but toward Marina she was always frosty, though sufficiently gracious to avoid attracting attention.

Ralph saw plainly whither his mother was drifting. She had set her heart upon his making Imogene his wife. She had never told him so, in just so many words, but her every act spoke her desire. Ralph loved his mother, and he most devoutly wished to know whether she loved Miss Ireton. Sometimes when she sat beside him, her face drooped, her eyes downcast, her fragrant breath warm on his face, he fancied she was all the world to him, and then a single tone of Marina's sweet voice would dispel even the memory of Imogene's presence.

One sunny afternoon, the party at the Rock went for a ramble down the shore. Imogene, swinging her straw hat on her arm, walked by the side of Ralph. Growing far down in a cleft of a rock, she spied a bunch of purple flowers. She clasped her hands with childish glee.

"What lovely blossoms! Such a perfect shade of purple! How I wish I had them for my hair! My hellebore petals are ugly by comparison!" And she tore the odorous things from her massive braids and crushed them in her hand.

Marina, too, was looking down at the coveted flowers. Ralph stepped toward them. Lynde Graham and Mr. Verstein both spoke together.

"Don't go, Trenholme! It looks dangerous!"

Ralph laughed. "Gallant gentlemen, to think of dancing where a lady's satisfaction is concerned! I count myself fortunate to be allowed the privilege of risking so little for so much!"

Miss Ireton blushed with triumph. Marina's eyes were downcast.

Ralph swung himself over the cliff. Both the girls advanced to look over. He gathered the blossoms, put them in his bosom, and prepared to return. But he placed his foot on an insecure stone; it gave way, and he was precipitated downward. A clump of spruce broke, somewhat, his fall, but those who looked over the brink hardly dared hope that there was anything but death beneath!

Miss Ireton fell back, pale and trembling. Agnes lost all consciousness in a swoon, but Marina leaned over, and called into the depths, with her clear, soft voice:

"Mr. Trenholme!"

She always called him so now. It was no longer Ralph, as of old. There was no reply. She rose up, pale as death, but there was no tremor in her voice as she said:

"Dr. Graham, we must get him up. There are ropes and a boat a few rods above."

Graham was off for them and back again in a moment. The gentlemen looked at each other inquiringly. There was no way to reach Trenholme, save by descending the face of the cliff. Marina took an end of the rope and made it fast around her waist.

They read her purpose in her eyes and strove to dissuade her, but she answered, calmly:

"No, I can go best of all. Your strength will be needed to draw us both up. And I have lived among these cliffs from childhood."

They offered no further resistance, but lowered her carefully down. She touched the hand of Ralph Trenholme—it was warm. Her heart gave a great bound. She knew that he lived. She disengaged the rope and put it about him, and in rapid succession both were drawn up to their friends.

Trenholme was only stunned, and the motion revived him. He rose to his feet, and took the flowers from his bosom. Some deep purpose glowed in his eyes. He turned to Marina, who stood a little apart.

"They are children of the salt spray, like yourself, Marina," he said. "Wear them and do me honor."

She colored slowly, bowed her graceful head, and fastened them in her curls. Imogene's eyes flashed dangerously, but her voice was cool as she said:

"Dear me, how pretty! But purple is hardly becoming to a blonde, though no one objects to purple and gold, I believe."

After that, Ralph devoted himself to Marina, and not all the blandishments of the black-eyed syren could win him from his allegiance. Once only, she tried palpably to bring him back. He had promised to teach Marina a new move in chess, that night, promised in the hearing of Imogene. As he was passing the conservatory on his way to the little room occupied by the girls in common, he heard his name called:

"Mr. Trenholme."

He knew the voice at once, and went to Imogene.

"Isn't it a perfect night?" she said, looking out into the clear moonlight. "It is so sweet, it makes me restless. I wish you would go and walk with me on the cliffs. Will you?" She put her hand on his arm and looked up at him with her matchless eyes.

He dropped her hand gently from his arm.

"Thank you," he said quietly. "It would afford me much pleasure, but I have engaged to play a game of chess with Marina. I will send Verstein or Dr. Graham to you."

What a look she flashed upon him! Her eyes fairly shot lightning, her face was like a thunder-cloud. She closed her small hand slowly; the action was significant, but the voice in which she replied was cool and even:

"Oh! of course I would not interfere with any previous engagement. You need not trouble either of the other gentlemen. On second thought, I must go to my room and finish a letter which ought to have gone this morning. Au revoir."

And she swept away.

CHAPTER III.

THEIR game of chess over, Trenholme drew Marina out upon the western piazza, and from thence to the path leading to the cliffs. They walked on silently, as people do whose hearts beat as one—walked on, her hand in his, unheeding that the sweet night had changed, and that the cold wind was glooming the sky with black clouds.

They sat down together on a broken fragment of rock that seemed to lean out, listening to the murmur of the sea. Trenholme put his arm around Marina.

"My child," he said, "you have known me a long time. Do you trust me?"

She looked up into his face with the confidence of a child.

"Yes, Ralph, as I trust no other."

"I am glad. Because I want you for my wife. I love you. I have loved you, I think, ever since the sea cast you up at my feet, and now I want you wholly my own."

She did not reply, only looked at him, in a little tremulous flutter of wonder, her innocent heart shining through her eyes.

"Marina, I am waiting for you to speak."

"But, Ralph, I have no name," she sighed.

"I have given you mine once, now I offer it to you for all your life!"

"But your mother?"

"My mother is proud, but she loves me. And she will love my wife, Marina, answer me, dear."

"What shall I say?"

"Tell me if you love me—if you trust me enough to give yourself into my keeping?"

His face was bent to hers. She put her arm timidly around his neck.

"I do love you, Ralph," she said softly, "more than all the world! And I have been so wretched, thinking you cared for Miss Ireton!"

"My little Marina! Miss Ireton is magnificent, but I do not love her. You are my light. Nothing shall divide us."

He took her in his arms, and pressed his lips to hers.

Just then the storm burst over them. The thunder crashed, the lightning gleamed blood-red athwart the heavens. Trenholme caught Marina up, and bounded lightly from rock to rock up the circuitous path to the house. Just across the end of the piazza lay the fallen form of the old sycamore tree that had for years waved over the eastern gables, rent and riven into splinters by a fiery thunderbolt. Marina grew pale as death and shivered when she saw it.

"O Ralph! Ralph!" she cried, clinging to him, "it is an omen!"

He kissed her, to soothe her fears.

"My darling! It is nothing. The lightning likes an old tree, and this has kept guard here for ages. Do not give it a thought. To-night I shall speak to my mother. Sleep well, dear; remember you belong to me."

He left her at the door of her chamber, which was in the east wing, on the second floor, and whose bay windows had always been shaded by the great tree now fallen.

Nether Ralph nor Marina had seen, crouching under the fallen trunk, the weird form that looked at them out of great, revengful eyes, that clutched its white hand through the gloom, muttering hoarsely:

"My hour will come! and then beware!"

Marina crept into bed, trembling at the fierce raging of the storm, yet filled with a strange delight. Her lips yet thrilled with his kisses; she held her hands tenderly to her heart, because his fingers had pressed them.

Ralph, too, was moved. A little pride he felt in the fact that he had stared and grey pale as death. But she had so long dreaded him, that she had no longer feared him.

"Well?" she said, a little haughtily. "I ask you to accept her as a daughter, and to love her, if not for her own sake, at least for mine. And she deserves even your love, in justice to her merits."

"Partially may influence your opinion in regard to Marina's virtues; but I have nothing to urge against her character. I helped to form it myself. Ralph, I have feared this for a long time, but I hoped for a different result. I am frank with you. I had set my heart on seeing you the husband of Imogene Ireton. She is beautiful, she is your equal in wealth and rank—and more, she loves you!"

"Mother!"

"I know you think, my son, that one woman should never betray another's secrets. And perhaps she should not. But I hoped this fact might have an influence with you."

"And it has not. I love only Marina—none other. And she loves me. Mother, will you accept her as I ask you?"

"Ralph, how can I? I am of a proud race. I believe in blood. And this girl has not even a name!"

"She will have mine. It is an honorable one. No father lady has ever borne it; and the world knows many noble and beautiful women have borne it worthily."

"Will nothing move you, Ralph?"

"Mother, words are useless. My mind is fixed. Forgive me if I seem undutiful, for in loving Marina I have not ceased to love my mother, but in marriage love should be first always."

He sank down on one knee before her, and put his head in her lap, just as he used to do, when a child he came to have his little troubles soothed away.

"Mother, dear, bless me, and promise to love Marina."

He looked up into her face, and the look conquered. His eyes were like those of his dead father. She bent over him and kissed his forehead, her face wet with tears. He understood the gesture, and went away from her content. The next day at dinner, the engagement was announced.

CHAPTER IV.

THE preparations for the wedding of the heir of Trenholme house were on a magnificent scale.

Mrs. Trenholme having once yielded, would do the generous thing, and Marina would be married with all the pomp and ceremony that she would have given to Agnes in the same case.

The gentle bride took very little interest in the preparations. She had best sit out on the cliffs with Marina, her hand in his, her sweet eyes looking out to sea from whence she came to him. And so the blissful summer days went by, and brought him the twentieth of September, the time set apart for the bridal.

Miss Ireton had been profuse in her congratulations, and it was by Marina's own request that she came over to the Rock a week before the wedding day, to assist in various items of the bride's trousseau. And she was to be bridesmaid and remain until they had set forth on their wedding tour.

The twentieth arrived, clear and cloudless and bland. A large party had assembled at the Rock two or three days previously, and was made still larger by constantly arriving reinforcements. The ladies-in-waiting had dressed the bride and left her to herself. The hour-hand on the great clock in the hall pointed to ten. It was the hour set for the ceremony. The bishop came forward in his robes. Mrs. Trenholme spoke to the bridesmaids as they stood in a group before her.

PREPARATION OF MEATS.

Methods by Which the French Butchers Excel in Their Calling.

Butchers' meat (in France) is prepared, divided and arranged in the shops in such a manner that it never suggests slaughter. It is a rare thing for one to see a slain on counter, bench or floor. The mode of killing the animals probably has something to do with this freedom from moisture and dripping. Maria Parloa, in an article on "The Science of French Cooking," in the Ladies' Home Journal, says the animals are not killed before being killed, as might be inferred from the absence of moisture, but they are killed in such a manner that veins and arteries are emptied quickly and thoroughly. After this the animal is bonified, that is, filled with wind. The large arteries are pressed open and the points of large bellows are inserted into them. While the bellows are being worked a man beats all parts of the carcass with a flat stick. This is to distribute the air in all parts of the flesh. All this work is done very rapidly. The inflating of the animal in this manner gives a fuller and firmer appearance to the meat, and, I fancy, empties the veins and arteries more effectively than they would otherwise be. The French use very little ice, and meats are kept only a few days at the most. The best of beef in France does not compare with American beef, but the veal is superior to anything we have. It is valued more highly than any other product of the butcher. But no matter what the viand when it comes to the hands of the cook it is so prepared that she has but little to do to it except to cook it.

The Bloomers Failed.

Bloomers as an aid to smuggling were tried by two San Francisco girls in an experiment that failed. The girls took passage to Honolulu on one of the mail steamers, and excited the suspicion of the Hawaiian customs officers by going ashore clad in voluminous bloomers. They were followed to a house in Honolulu, where the discarded bloomers and sixty tins of smuggled opium were found. The girls were arrested and convicted of smuggling, but on appeal to the Supreme Court the case against them was dismissed because their guilt was not proven clearly. The girls returned to San Francisco a few days ago in the steamer, wearing skirts.
